Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0585735A1] The safety-lock cylinder of a door (16) has a passage bore (3) in the transverse direction in its lower part for a securing screw (6). The object according to the invention is, therefore, to provide a lock security which, by the use of as many of the hitherto known individual parts as possible, from the lock cylinder (1) to the lock case (2), prevents an unauthorised removal or exchange of the lock cylinder (1) and, if possible, is also to be capable of being retrofitted. It is therefore necessary to arrange in the lock case (2) an interlock unit (5) which is equipped with a continuous orifice (8) aligned with the passage bore (3) of the safety-lock cylinder (1). <IMAGE>
