Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0587480A1] The coin-operated latching consignment system includes a housing (1) with two slots (2, 3) which can receive corresponding keys, the said housing is shaped to receive a key provided with a location for a latching consignment coin so that the insertion of a second key unlocks a first key carrying a coin and locked in a first slot, while leaving the second key in place locked in a second slot. This system includes at least one key catch means (14, 15) which can move in translation substantially perpendicular to the key insertion direction (27a, 27b), and at least one locking means (5, 11) of the said catch means (14, 15) which can move in translation substantially parallel to the key insertion direction (27a, 27b). <IMAGE>
