Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0592854A1] The invention relates to a door handle (20, 29) which by simple means affords a releasable possibility adjustable to any door thicknesses, by providing a detent-spring connection which is embedded in a spring chamber (22) and which is held by means of a retaining element (10), without a disturbing transverse screw being present, and, furthermore, which allows the possibility of the damage-free production of radial grooves (18) on the door-handle guide extension for the snapping on of door escutcheons and door roses. <IMAGE>
