Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0596807A1] The invention relates to a wall which can be dismantled including at least one rigid frame (2) and at least one flexible skin (3). The flexible skin is double, having two separate faces (3a, 3b). The frame can be deformed between an assembly state and a tension state, the frame (2) being intended to be placed between the two faces (3a, 3b) of the skin in its assembly state, and then deformed in its tension state so as to stretch the skin (3). The invention also relates to shelters including such walls which can be dismantled. <IMAGE>
