Abstract (en)
A bodyform comprises four upper body sections (20) defining a bust or upper torso and four lower body sections (22) defining a hip region. Adjustment means enable the body sections to be expanded or contracted to vary girth, and to be moved towards or away from one another to vary the vertical dimension of the waist. Four waist body sections (38) span the vertical distance between the lower body section (22) and the upper body sections (20), each waist body section having a curved vertical wall (40) which is externally convex and shaped so as to provide a transition between the upper and lower body sections. The four waist body sections are respectively attached to, and project upwardly from, the lower body section (22) and provide a waist "wall", in four segments, at all adjusted positions of the upper and lower body sections. <IMAGE>
