Abstract (en)

Promotional messages or price tags of size substantially wider than the thickness of a shelf of a rack shelf onto which articles for sale are stored and which would therefore interfere with the access to the storing space underneath the shelf, are supported in an oscillating manner by means of slidable clips. The clips may be mounted on an existing price tag molding of the front edge of the shelf. The clip with an oscillating arm object of the invention, may be made in different forms adapted for being mounted on price tag moldings of the so-called pocket-type or on price tag moldings having a "C" cross section. In the first instance, the clip of the invention provides also a virtual "C"-shaped guide for eventually mounting a standard slot-type clip for "flag-mounted" promotional cards. <IMAGE>
