Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0616955A1] A collecting container for centrally collected materials, having at least one insertion aperture (5) for the material and an emptying aperture for emptying the filled container with the aid of a lifting apparatus which has the necessary strength and durability for the intended purpose, is characterised by a supporting construction consisting of a base frame (1), profiled columns (2) at the corners of the container and a stable upper connection (17) between the profiled columns (2), and wall parts (6) which extend between the profiled columns (2) and adjoin the base frame (1). The collecting container according to the invention can be transported as a "construction kit" and erected at the recipient's premises.
