Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0621388A1] The invention relates to a door whose frame includes a rectangular facia extending over the entire surface of the door and carrying pivot means. According to the invention, the lock used is a bar lock comprising a lock face (40) extending over the most part of the length of the door and along which are distributed several moving bolts (44) and the facia has an attached front rim (18, 22) defining a housing for the lock face so that the latter is flush with a front edge (11) of the facia. <IMAGE>
