Abstract (en)

A masking device for use by hairdressers during hair treatment comprises an elongate single sheet of substantially transparent flexible material (1), having apertures (3) therethrough spaced along a line transverse to the longitudinal axis of the sheet and disposed at a median portion thereof. On said sheet there is provided at least one adhesive zone extending transversely to said longitudinal axis and disposed over or substantially adjacent to said plurality of apertures to hold the treated hair in position between the two portions of the sheet which are held together by the adhesive.
