Abstract (en)
A wall tie (10) including, in a region to be received within a mortar course, a surface (17a,17b) angled to the plane of the mortar course in which it is to be embedded in such a direction that the application of a force to the tie (10) to move the tie in the mortar course in the direction of the length of the tie (10) results in a wedging action tending to separate the brick or block courses above and below the tie so that such movement is resisted inter alia by the weight of that part of the wall above the wall tie (10) acting thereon. <IMAGE>
