Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0641701A1] An entry step for rail vehicles has at least one step which can be moved outwards in the region of the entry. In order to be able to adapt the entry to different heights of platforms or passenger waiting areas and/or to different distances from the platform or from the passenger waiting area, at least three steps (1, 2, 3) are provided, at least the lowest step (1) of which is constructed so as to be capable of moving out and the top step (3) of which is constructed so as to be capable of moving out and of being retracted. <IMAGE>
