Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0643260A1] A mounting device for a recessed ceiling lighting fixture (lamp, luminaire) is described, having a mounting bracket (1) for placement on a longitudinal ceiling support (11) and a mounting arm (2), which are connected to one another by means of a guiding device, the guiding device being a longitudinal guiding device with a large adjusting play, which acts perpendicularly with respect to the ceiling, can be set continuously and can be fixed and which has a coarsely set assembly position and a finely set installation position, and the longitudinal guiding device, which can be set continuously and which can be fixed, for the purpose of producing a self-locking action, being arranged such that the ceiling lighting fixture comes to rest on the mounting bracket (1) and is pivotable on the mounting arm (2). The mounting bracket (1) can in the simplest case interact directly with the lighting fixture housing, with the result that the mounting arm (2) can be dispensed with. <IMAGE>
