Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0648685A2] The invention relates to a tray, designed with recesses, for receiving a plurality of containers, tubes and the like, whose screw-on lids fit into the recesses. The tray contains an additional part. The additional part is an element which, on the one hand, fits into the recesses in the tray and, on the other hand, is designed on the inside such that the containers with their screw-on lids can be received there. If an additional part comprises two recesses which are joined together via webs, two containers can correspondingly be received in the recesses of the additional part, said additional part in turn being received as a unit in two adjacent recesses in a tray.
