Abstract (en)

Fastening device, particularly for sports shoes including a first flap (4) and a second (5) flap which mutually overlap. In the device, at least one flexible tab (7) is associated with the first flap or protrudes therefrom and has a lever (12) at one end; its other end overlaps the second flap. The tab is also interposed between the first and second flaps and a covering element (8) which is in turn associated, at its end, with the second flap and the lever. The first and second flaps are in mutual contact. It is thus possible to achieve optimum tightness against water or snow at the overlapping regions of the flaps. <IMAGE>
