Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0662584A1] The light socket (2) is intended to be fitted into an opening (15) formed in the surface of the housing of a pocket lamp. The socket includes openings (21,27) necessary for establishing electrical contact between contact lamellae (16) and the conductive portions (30,31) of the base of the lamp (3). A retaining mechanism (27) cooperates with the fixings (16). By rotation of the socket it is possible to light or extinguish the pocket lamp. An intermediate rotation position is provided at which it is possible to extract the socket from the casing.
