Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0671526A2] The mounting uses two anchors inserted into the door panel, to support a tensioning rod (1) in a guide groove (F). The groove is covered by a rail (2), which has limbs (4) which grip the edges of the groove by outward projections (5). The arms are fitted with attachments (6,7) projecting inwards to enclose the rod. The attachments may have V-shaped cross-sections towards the tensioning rod. At least one of the limbs may also have a bent end (8), in order to form an attachment which grips the rod from the rear.
