Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0672465A1] The tool has a support element (12) with a handle (13) and a working part fitted to it. The working part can be turned on the handle to the required angle and fixed. The front end of the handle is widened like a fan. The Support element can be pivotably adjusted on the handle which consists of at least two shell components (15,16), which can be fixed to each other, fitting between the parts of the support element. The handle may have a slit aperture to accommodate the support element.
