Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0673634A1] The compensating device (13) positively adjusts the backrest (4). An adjustment (14) for the length of the backrest is integrated in the compensating device or is positioned in series with it. The backrest consists of a support (4a) on which is radially movably mounted a backrest part (4b) in a guide (31). The backrest support is movably attached to the seat part (2) in a linkage (6) containing the link axle (6a) and grips the compensating device on the backrest part. The compensating device has a system of tie and slide rods movably connected, near the link, eccentrically to the link axle, with the seat part or its link part (2a) on the swivel plane of the backrest.
