Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0676185A2] The improvements relate to the provision of a system for the recirculation of hot air and steam inside the sauna cabin with independent outlets for the steam and the hot air arranged in the lower portion of the cabin and respectively connected to the steam generator, which is arranged outside the cabin and at its lower portion, and to a pipe outside the cabin leading from an intake in the roof of the same and having heating resistance elements. The improvements are applicable to individual sauna cabins and permit an improvement in the thermal efficiency and the elimination of excessively hot zones in the top portion. <IMAGE>
