Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0710883A1] The information system is used for specifying the handler used to process the customer order, via an information carrier provided with the handler information which has the same format as the delivered photographic items and which is inserted in the order pack handed over to the customer. Pref. the information is provided by a printer on photographic paper, pref. at the end of the printing run for the ordered photographs. Pref. the automatic printer for the photographic delivers an additional blank sheet which is then printed with the handler information via a CRT printer.
