Abstract (en)
A mould (8) comprises an integral body (11) having a surface (7) of the desired shape for the pulp moulding. The body (11) is porous so that water can be drawn therethrough under a vacuum. The mould (8) is suitable for pulp moulding, and can be formed by flowing a particulate material over and appropriately shaped template, then setting the particulate material. A transfer tool for use in pulp moulding is also described. <IMAGE>
