Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0741998A2] The bandage is self-adhesive on one side, and stabilises and guides the patella. A cut runs in the lengthwise direction of the strip (1) and for nearly its full length, ending at a recess (4) accommodating the patella when placed in position. The recess can be circular, with a diameter of roughly 4cm., being situated on the strip centre line. The bandage can be used to protect the patella against lateral or medial deflection and it can be of textile elastic in the lengthwise direction.
