Abstract (en)

[origin: WO9522407A1] The invention relates to a base part for a spray head, having holes (2) for the passage of water, wherein the base part (1) is made of a resilient material, and wherein at least one projection (3) disposed adjacent at least one hole (2) for the passage of water is provided, which projection (3) is connected to the base part (1) and projects beyond the exterior (4) of the base part (1). According to the invention, the projection (3) is arranged directly adjacent at least one hole (2) for the passage of water such that the outer surface of the projection (3) merges substantially continuously into the inner surface of the hole (2), so that lime scum on the base part (1) of the spray head can be removed rapidly and easily.
