Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0748603A1] The bedding mattress comprises an internal spring suspension (2) fixed to a frame (4). There are several parallel streams of packed helicoidal springs (3) located longitudinally in the mattress and fixed to each other by gluing. The suspension is enclosed in a non fabric covering (5,6) covered with a protection coating (8,9) on its usable surface. There is a relatively high layer of elongated flexible material having a natural rubber base in the form of a sheet located under the protection covering. This sheet covers a cut out part (5a) of the casing located in a zone corresponding approximately to the part of the human body located between the shoulders and the buttocks.
