Abstract (en)

A protective net garment for dangerous jobs that is made either entirely or in part of netting, preferably of the non-run type (11), with a perforated panel (12, 13) or with links (14), of a strength such as to resist damage by elements or parts falling or thrown during the job and to allow body transpiration. Said protective garment has fixing tapes (2, 5) and, on the inner surface, spacers (4) suitable to hold the protective garment away from the body so as to absorb the shock of waste materials, and particularly of use when the operator is working in conditions of high environmental heat and in danger of being sprayed with poisonous liquids. This protective garment can take the shape of an apron (1), a shirt (1a, 1b) if necessary provided with leggings (1b') and sleeves (6, 6'), or an overall with body (7), trousers (8) and sleeves (9), in which the above elements can be separated and joined together by means of connection devices (10), preferably of a pleated type. <IMAGE>
