Abstract (en)

[origin: WO9625988A1] The container device according to the present invention comprises a paper or similar container having the shape of a small paper (1) and the external structure of a picture-card with figures for identification (2) and location (3) for the application of means (4) that may be used in battle games contained inside said paper (1), so that when one of the devices belonging to the formation of one player is defeated, the opponent winner may provide for the material destruction of the captured device, tearing the container that will be therefore materially eliminated from the game and, at the same time, for the appropriation of the means (4) contained in said paper which may be now applied as a reinforcement of one's own devices' formation.
