Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0758031A1] The detergent flushing device has fresh water distributing ducts, which are located above detergent chambers and have outflow openings (14-16) for supplying fresh water to the chambers. At least a proportion of the outflow openings (16) have an enlarged cross section compared to the holes located laterally in the main flow direction. The has a flow divider (17) which is located before the enlarged holes (16) and guides the flow mainly to the laterally positioned holes (14).
