Abstract (en)

[origin: DE19508180A1] The invention concerns a device for printing markings on flat consignments, said device comprising one or a plurality of printing stations which each comprise at least one print head (8), the consignments being guided individually past the printing stations by a conveyor and abutting a sliding element (1). Disposed in the region of the printing station is a vacuum device (5) which, by means of a vacuum, exerts on the consignments a normal force substantially perpendicular to the direction in which the consignments are conveyed towards the printing stations.
