Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0761153A1] The equipment comprises a supporting frame for the bath or basin. It has vertical supporting tubes and feet, while skirt sections forming cladding are secured by clips to the tubes at the side towards the room. A foot (113) forms an extension at each bottom tube end (111), and is adjustable for height from a remote point accessible from the room side, typically by a shaft (117) engaging with the foot via a worm wheel, whose shaft forms a screw thread engaging in a nut fixed to the tube bottom end. Alternatively a flexible shaft can be used.
