Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0764929A1] The rail (1) has two accommodation components (4) running in the longitudinal direction. At two opposite end areas of the adapter (2), two push-in components (5,6) are provided, which in the fitted condition engage in the two accommodation components of the rail. The adapter has a connecting component (11), via which the price cassette can be fixed to the adapter. The longitudinally running accommodation components are L and/or C-shaped grooves. The two push-in components of the adapter are sprung in the cross direction to the accommodation components of the rail. Each push-in component comprises two holding components (7), which in the non-installed state are arranged at an acute angle to the corresp. outer cross edge of the adapter.
