Abstract (en)

Portable table to be fed with current by a battery (1) to be recharged by a power supply. Said current, acting on a push button (2), comes in a first sequence to a microprogrammed control card (3) simultaneously starting two service displays (4 and 5), symmetrically placed on the lateral borders of the back face of the portable table, acting as numeric selectors for pre-setting two figure numbers, one regarding the player who must go out and the other regarding the player called to replace him. Said pre-setting numbers are formed by the operator actuating in sequence four push buttons in two pairs: two push buttons (6 and 7) for the first display (4) and two push buttons (8 and 9) for the second display (5). In each pair of buttons, one button is for incrementing the number from 00 to 99 and the other for decreasing the same from 99 to 00. The pre-set numbers are permanently visualized on the service displays (4 and 5) and instantaneously sent by pressing a push button (10), or alternatively the other push button (11), for the number formed on the first service display (4) to light panels (12,13,14 and 15) and for the number formed on the second service display (5) to other light panels (16,17,18 and 19). <IMAGE>
