Abstract (en)

[origin: WO9617352A1] A box for storing and transporting at least one recording medium, consisting of a single element with two parallel walls (11, 12) defining a storage space with an access opening (13) at one end of the box. The inner surface of the first wall (11) is covered with a positioning means (5) which resiliently urges the recording medium against the second wall (12), said second wall being provided with a window (3) making it easier to translate said recording medium back and forth between its storage position and a position in which it is outside the box, and the positioning means (5) is made of a cleaning material with a texture such that, when the recording medium is translated back and forth in the box, said material automatically cleans the whole of the playback surface of the medium every time it is inserted or removed. Said box is useful as a packaging for recording media.
