Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0808583A2] The shoe has an upper with two first quarters, and a connected lower part (4). A bandage for the central foot is enclosed by the quarters, is fastened to one quarter and is relatively movable relative to the other quarter. The bandage is formed by a flexible collar, which engages directly on the foot. A second opening next to the original first opening (3) extends through the collar. The second quarters defining the second opening on either side are removably connected to each other independent of the first quarters. First and/or second quarters are connected to each other via lacing (2).
