Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0808984A1] The frame comprises members (1,2) which can be arranged to plug into each other via connecting portions, which can consist of tongues that fit into slots. Double tongues (19,20) on the one member can fit inside recesses (21,23) in the other. The tongues can distort, so as to secure the members permanently together. An additional component with tongues can be provided, its tongues fitting in slots in the tongues of one of the members after two members have been fitted together, while a further distorting tongue on it engages with the other member, so as to form a locking device. The tongues on the additional component can be of width and-or thickness tapering towards their free ends.
