A device for the elastic squeezing of hair tufts and similar, with automatic blocking and unblocking, by means of mechanic finger pressure means, comprising a means of the kind of an elastic cord (1), with free ends (2), passing by sliding through a blocking means (4) with a spring button (7), that determines the formation of a loop (3) for the collection of hair tufts and their squeezing to a diameter immediately determined. The device, when taken off, is widened by sliding the mechanic means (4) until to the stops (6) provided on the ends of said elastic cord (1), thus setting free the previously squeezed hair tufts. <IMAGE>
