Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0819456A2] The wheel, comprises two identical discs and a tyre, turning in a ball-bearing on a spindle, the bearing being fitted in central recesses in the discs. The discs are joined with the tyre without using a tool and the tyre comprises a supporting member and a running body. The discs and tyre have locking portions fitted together for preventing the tyre from skidding in the peripheral direction and also to prevent the twisting of the discs in relation to each other. The disc on the outside in the installed position can have a central recess in which a ball-bearing is inserted after the discs have been joined together.
