Abstract (en)
[origin: GB2300852A] A tape reinforced handle 10 has an end joined directly to a pack panel 12 in which the reinforcement tape 22 terminates, the handle end having edges formed by cuts 18, 20 running into the panel 12 and terminating in stress relieving apertures 38, 40. The cuts 18, 20 preferably diverge to form a widened handle end thereby allowing a substantial proportion of the handle loads to be transferred from the reinforcement tape 22 to the non-reinforced material of the handle end and panel 12. Pack sides 26 preferably overlie end edges of the handle formed by the divergent cuts 18, 20 to resist the wedging action which thereby arises. The pack sides 26 are fastened to the panel 12 by glue beads 30, 32, 34.
