Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0835620A2] The standing aid has a height adjustment device (4) which is arranged between the support component (3) and the retainer (2). Above the support component of the retainer a bent back support may be provided and above that a table may also be pivoted. On the foot part (1) and in the area of the stand surface a plate may be arranged. The plate may be pivotably connected to the foot part and the support component may be fixed to the retainer via an intermediate piece. Between the retainer and the intermediate piece an additional fine height adjustment may be provided and the support component may be arranged vertically and be plate-shaped.
