Abstract (en)
[origin: WO9515795A1] A game consists of a plurality of rectangular playing cards (1) provided on their front face (2) with at least one coloured bar (3) that extends transversely to the length of the card (1). The bar (3) contains one word (4). Each card (1) further has a sign (5) that explains the word, for example its translation into another language, as well as a number of points (6) that corresponds to the degree of grammatical difficulty of the word (4). Languages may thus be learned as an attractive parlour game.
