Abstract (en)

[origin: WO9706520A2] All base components (AO, LV, LZ, TB) of a practice and training simulator (IS) for a product are modular so as to be non product specific. The whole knowledge structure concerning a product, including documentation, is stored in an exchangeable knowledge base model (WBS) specific to each product to be simulated, whereas the base components remain the same for all practice and training processes for different products. The invention is useful for the practice and training of people to use the most different products, such as equipment, machines, installations and systems.
