Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0846428A1] Upper leg (9) of a rail (10) attached to a drawer (12) moves over a roller (8) attached to the front end of a rail (1) attached to the carcass (3) of a piece of furniture and at the rear over a roller (11) ruling between upper (6) and lower (5) legs of the carcass rail. An edge strip (13) formed from a bent edge section of the upper leg of the drawer rail secures the drawer to prevent it being lifted out. A support stop (14) projects above the upper guide leg (6) and is formed over the bent edge section of the drawer rail. Preferably, the support stop consists of a tongue cut out of the upper guide made apart from the guide roller area.
