Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0852120A1] The product application case (1) comprises a base section (2) containing a product (P) with an open surface (20). Also included are an applicator unit (9) with applicator (10) forming an application surface, and pressing on the open surface of the product. A second section (3) forms a lid mounted on the first. There is a coupling (gearing, 21, 22) responding to relative movement between the two sections (2, 3) about axis (A), causing relative movement between the free surface of the product and the application surface about another axis (x). This charges the application surface with product. The axis X is not the same as axis A.
