Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0852929A2] The method involves activating the dishwasher with a program start, and setting parameters for the wash process in response to a detected parameter which is necessary for the wash process and is influenced through it. A program consists preferably of partial program steps of "prewash", "cleaning", "intermediate wash", "rinsing", and "drying", whereby a minimum and maximum number of water changes and a minimum and maximum temperature for each partial program step, are adjusted according to the detected parameter.
