Abstract (en)

[origin: WO9712686A1] The invention concerns a method in which a product (27) to be dispensed is guided into an equalizing container (13). In a first path section an actuating lever (39) urges air via a pump (35) into the equalizing container (13) and a portion of the product (27) out of said container through the dispensing tube (26). In addition, in the first path section a second pump (36) is filled with air and a spring (65) is tensioned. The transfer lever (41), which takes the form of an articulated lever and connects the actuating lever (39) to the second pump (36) via a ratchet lever (47), bends at the end of the first path section. The previously tensioned spring (65) urges air out of the pump (36) into the dispensing tube (26) and abruptly blows out the remains of the product located there.
