Abstract (en)

[origin: DE19704181C1] A connecting component (9) made of stiff material is provided for the detachable connection of each working element (5) to the support disc (1). The connecting element is pushed through a hole (12) in the support disc, and by each of its two ends engages with a socket or recess formed at the attachment end. The two sockets or recesses of each working element are provided on opposite sides of a plane passing through the corresponding support disc.
