Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0864287A2] The separating segments (2) extend upwards at least from some of the rims of the tray or bath, and are firmly mounted on a stationary wall (3) next to the bath or shower part, or are swivel mounted on a vertical axis for entry to the shower area. Each segment consists of a flexible, practically waterproof section such as of textile fabric or plastic sheeting and joined to tensioning bars (6) extending from corner to corner of the rectangular flexible section. The bars are joined at their intersection point, in a mounting (7).
