Abstract (en)

By means of respective, opposite and almost diagonal cuts in the slabs, parts (6) of an irregular scalene triangle section are obtained with steps (2,2') along their larger side to form parts of a considerable height or else of a laminar shape for forming bi- or tridimensional figures, or by means of attaching the protruding notches (3,3') to said steps or to the steps of other parts or to the opposite ends of these notches in said same steps.
