Abstract (en)

[origin: DE19542830A1] Claimed are coloured particles containing surfactants, builders and/or bleaching agents and which are suitable for incorporation in washing and cleaning agents, the particles being characterized in that all or some of the dye is oxidatively destroyed by the washing process. The coloured particles make it possible to produce a coloured washing and cleaning agent which has a strong colour but which does not stain the laundry at the concentrations used, even after several washes.
