Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0877125A2] The frame has two vertical struts (2) and at least one cross member (8,9,11), which can be selectively attached to the struts at different heights. The cross members are guided height adjustably at their ends on perforated catch rails (4) of the struts. The cross members have catch parts which engage with the rails, and which can be brought in and out of engagement with the rails. Each catch part has at least one sprung protrusion (18) for engaging with the rails.
