Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0878595A1] The plate is substantially rectangular. It has a first large projection (28) in only one corner area and a second large projection (29) which are wider and higher than several other smaller projections on the surface of the plate and serve as holders for the shuttering element. The large projections are arranged so that they engage on the inner face (35,38) of frame arms (30,31) of the shuttering element (37) which runs perpendicular to the plane of a shuttering skin of the shuttering element when the element is placed with its corner on the corner of the plate having the large projections.
